Dear Spul'u'kwuks Families,

I hope you are all finding ways to avoid the extreme heat as much as possible. This has certainly been a challenging year. As promised in the letter to all parents yesterday evening, here is an update regarding school attendance for tomorrow, Tuesday, June 29th.

Internal temperatures in our schools are very hot today (as high as 40 degrees in some areas of schools) and temperatures are not expected to drop significantly for tomorrow according to the weather forecast. We therefore ask that parents/caregivers keep their children at home again tomorrow (Tuesday). Temperatures are expected to begin to drop on Wednesday and we expect that the school will be open for students to attend on that day.

Once again, I would like to thank all parents for your patience and understanding of yet another challenging circumstance that we are all navigating together.

Sincerely,

Scott Robinson
Superintendent of Schools
